

Deborah WojcikAssistant Professor

B.A., University of Virginia

M.Ed., Temple University

M.P.T., Drexel University

Debbie Wojcik is a graduate of Hahnemann University Programs in Physical Therapy in Philadelphia, PA. She also holds an undergraduate degree from the University of Virginia as well as a master's degree in Exercise Physiology from Temple University. She is currently pursuing a doctorate in Health Sciences at Jefferson University. In her many years of experience, Debbie has worked in multiple settings all with one thing in common, the practice of Cardiopulmonary Physical Therapy. She has been the coordinator for inpatient and outpatient cardiac rehabilitation programs and served as a therapist in the Acute Care setting with a particular focus on the critical care setting. She has practiced clinically at the Virtua Health System, Penn-Presbyterian Medical Center as well as the Einstein Health system. Currently, Debbie is practicing in a Healthcare Informatics role as part of a team integrating clinical workflows with electronic systems including electronic health records. In addition to clinical practice, Debbie is currently a part-time faculty member at Neumann University's physical therapy program. For the last 20 years, she has served as adjunct faculty at many PT programs in the Philadelphia area including Drexel, Widener and Rutgers – South. Her teaching responsibilities have also included Cardiopulmonary Physical Therapy as well as Exercise Physiology, Pathophysiology and the role of physical therapy for the medically complex patient.